

Ph.D Program of Study Worksheet (for D2)
Department of Philosophy, University of Missouri-Columbia
July 2018

Instructions: Complete the following and submit along with the D2 form. List courses that you will take in appropriate section. If the course is transferred from elsewhere, annotate with "(trans)".

Your name: _____

(A) Language Requirement (only if required by student's doctoral committee)

(B) Proto-Seminar (8100; 3 credits)

(C) Teaching Philosophy (8210; 1 credit)

(D) Dissertation Seminar (8300; 1 credit)

(E) Logic (two of 7110 Intermediate Logic, 7120 Advanced Logic, and 9887 Logic Seminar; 3 credits each)

(F) History (one course from (a) and one course from (b); 3 credits each)

(a) 9050 Plato
9060 Aristotle

(b) 9110 Rationalists
9120 Empiricists
9130 Kant

(G) Core Areas (one course from (a), one from (b), and one from (c); 3 credits each)

(a) 9320 Social and Political Philosophy
9520 Ethical Theory

(b) 8510 Metaphysics: A survey
9610 Metaphysics
9710 Philosophy of Mind
9840 Seminar in Philosophy of Language

-
- (c) 9820 Epistemology
9830 Philosophy of Science

(H) Supplementary Distribution Requirements

Students must take an additional course from each of two of the five distribution areas (Logic; History; Ethics and Political; Mind, Metaphysics, and Language; Epistemology and Philosophy of Science). For this purpose, students may take either courses on the area lists above from the following supplemental lists:

Logic and Related Areas: also 9510 Decision Theory (3 credits) _____

History of Philosophy: also 9070 Medieval Thinkers (3 credits) _____

Ethical Theory and Political Philosophy: no additions _____

Metaphysics, and Philosophy of Mind, and Language: also 9720 Foundations of Cognitive Science* (3 credits)

Epistemology and Philosophy of Science: also 9720 Foundations of Cognitive Science*, 9840 Philosophy of Biology (3 credits each)

* PHIL 9720 can count for only one area and the student is free to decide which.

With the approval of the Graduates Affairs Committee, PHIL 9901 Seminar (topic open) will count towards one of these areas when the seminar is on a suitable topic. Other substitutions may be possible, but must be approved by the Graduate Affairs Committee.

(I) Other Courses (for a total of at least 41 credits in regular [non-research] graduate courses; at least 24 of these must be taken at MU [and not transferred]; specify the number of credits for each course):

Students must take 72 hours of graduate work (numbered 7000 or higher) satisfying the following conditions:

- (1) Transfer Credits: With the approval of the student's Doctoral Program Committee up to 30 of the 72 hours can be transferred from other institutions.

(2) Doctoral Level Credits: The Graduate School requires that at least 15 credit hours be earned at the 8000 level or above—exclusive of research, problem, or independent study courses.

(3) Non-Philosophy Credits: At least 60—or 48, if pursuing a minor in Ancient Studies—of the 72 credit hours must be in philosophy.